Director's Notes

Late this summer, TCPL expects to unveil a new, convenient service in an unusual space. Amazingly, this space is only available because of long-lasting initiatives and care for our community by a past library supporter. This column pays tribute to that individual and announces a new library service.

On November 17, 2017, our community lost a great leader and benefactor. Don Stein's death was a surprise to many people who knew his everyday approach to work, his choice to enjoy life, and his preference for privacy. Personally, I was saddened to hear of Don's passing. I had tremendous respect for his hard-working spirit and insights about our community.

Although they were infrequent, I thoroughly enjoyed our discussions, usually in his office, often ending with adamant advice and cautionary measures. I admired Don's passion and frankness. He always let you know where you stood and helped you understand his message. Each time I left his office, I pondered over his words of wisdom. With all of his humbleness, he was a very impressive man.

Many people know the impact Don made on the community. In multiple ways, he led with his time and money. Don greatly contributed to the library as well. He was a founding member of the Tippecanoe County Library Foundation and served on that board for several terms. His leadership within the Foundation was a testament to his support of the library as an institution of learning. Don established a permanent endowment for TCPL's Foundation at the Community Foundation of Greater Lafayette.

Philanthropically, Don not only made financial donations, he also initiated the effort to establish the Red Crown Mini-Museum. The museum was housed in the former Standard Oil Station adjacent to the Downtown Library. Various memorabilia displayed in its windows were collected and owned by Don Stein.

Don was extremely supportive of the Friends of TCPL, consistently donating used books to their quarterly sales. Once, in support of renovation updates at the Downtown Library, Don even allowed his antique cars to be part of a special Friends Book Sale.

Three agencies work together behind the scenes to help make the Tippecanoe County Public Library the multi-faceted system it is today. Don kept a low profile, but his work was essential and impacted all three.

In 2006, to recognize Don's long-term service and support to the library while he was still living, the TCPL Board of Trustees renamed the Walter Gray Building, the "Don and Lois Stein" building. Located at the corner of Sixth and South Streets, this building currently houses TCPL's Technical Services Department and MatchBOX Studios, Inc.

This year, Don's legacy at the library will continue. We will update, renovate, and fundamentally restore the Red Crown Mini-Museum. To improve its efficiency and comfort level, we will restore electricity and running water, plus add basic heating and cooling systems. TCPL will combine the 1920s gas station with a new library service -- a 24-Hour Library in the garage bay.

Made by EnvisionWare,® the 24-Hour Library will dispense more than 300 circulating items from the library's collection. In addition to selecting new items, you can drop in to pick up items on hold.

This newest generation of library equipment will be the first of its kind in Indiana. It expands TCPL services beyond traditional building hours and locations. Just as important, the building will continue to be a mini-museum. It will highlight a secure display of memorabilia and paraphernalia representing the historical period of the Standard Oil Station.

We truly believe this 24/7 Library accomplishes many things. We delight in a new opportunity to engage active card holders and hopefully generate new library users. Downtown residents and visitors will enjoy a new point of service and historical interest. Don Stein's legacy of giving back to the community continues. Surely, Don will be missed, but his commitment to the library lives on.

Can't Find It?

Statewide Remote Circulation System (SRCS)
If we don't have it, another library in Indiana might. Log in with your library card number and search the statewide catalog. Note: Most libraries do not loan new materials through SRCS or ILL.

Request An Interlibrary Library (ILL)
Looking for an article or can't find something in SRCS? Try an interlibrary loan. We can search libraries across the US for it. Online form: tcpl.lib.in.us/browse/interlibrary-loan/

Suggest A Purchase
Want something new or not yet available? Our selectors review all suggestions and see if we can add them to our collection. Online suggestions: tcpl.lib.in.us/browse/suggest-item-purchase/
