

POCKET EDITION

Traveling Lincoln Exhibit At Downtown Library

"Forever Free: Abraham Lincoln's Journey to Emancipation," will be on display during library hours at the Tippecanoe County Public Library, 627 South St., from September 1 through October 15, 2004.

President Abraham Lincoln's 1863 Emancipation Proclamation freeing U.S. slaves brought new meaning to the word "freedom." How did this once antislavery moderate become "The Great Emancipator"?

A new traveling exhibit, "Forever Free: Abraham Lincoln's Journey to Emancipation," tells the story in dramatic reproductions of historical documents and photos.

The Tippecanoe County Public Library is one of just 40 libraries in the nation—and the only one in Indiana—chosen from 165 applicants to be a host.

On Display Until October 15

The free exhibit will be on display during library hours in the downtown library lobby from September 1 through October 15.

Lincoln Grew Up In Indiana

"This exhibit is especially appropriate for our state because Abraham Lincoln lived in Indiana from 1816 to 1830, from the age of 7 until he was 21," says Carol Stults, Head Youth Librarian.

It draws on original documents from collections at the Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., and New York City's Gilder-Lehrman Institute of American History.

The 75-foot-long panel display covers six areas:

- Young Lincoln's America
- The House Dividing
- War for the Union
- A New Birth of Freedom
- War for the Union and Freedom
- Legacies.

Library Hosts Several Programs

"Bringing such an impressive and moving piece of history to Lafayette is also an opportunity for some dynamic programs, and we've planned several for youth, families and adults," Stults says. (See articles inside.)

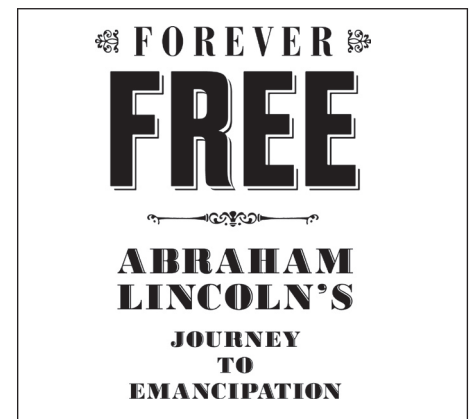

National, Local Sponsors

The exhibit was organized by the Huntington Library and Gilder-

Lehrman Institute, in cooperation with the American Library Association and funded by a National Endowment for the Humanities grant.

Local sponsors include Gannett Foundation/Journal and Courier, Tipmont REMC Operation Round Up and Friends of the Tippecanoe County Public Library.

Any views, findings, conclusions or recommendations expressed in this exhibition and related programs do not necessarily represent those of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Director's Notes

by Jos N. Holman,
County Librarian

Summer is officially coming to a close and many of us spent the first few weeks of August trying to enjoy the weather and leisure time before we were subject to a schedule dominated by education-related activities. For public taxing units, which include libraries, there is something else that dominates our time in early August. August is the time of year when we work through our entire budget process for the next calendar year. As a public taxing unit, the library's budget and tax rates are calculated, publicly made available to the community, and officially adopted by the Board of Trustees. All of this must occur in a specific time frame regulated by state government.

However, the focus of this column is not to educate you on the budget, but to share a thought that often comes to me during the budget process. Simply put, "The library is a bargain." This statement is not meant to be boastful. Neither is it meant to be flippant. I just am not sure everyone realizes what a great bargain the services of your local library really are. Local residents, who financially support the library through local funding sources like property taxes, really get a great return on their investment.

Using less than six cents per one hundred dollars of assessed property valuation, the library provides popular materials, access to technology and electronic resources, and modern facilities to everyone who uses the library. Also, the library provides quality customer service and well-trained, dedicated staff members 71 hours a week throughout the year. As an added value, TCPL offers more than 750 programs each year through the creativity of TCPL staff and direct financial contributions of our Friends group.

In my humble perspective, your public library is one of the best bargains in this community, and the more than 700,000 folks who visit the library each year reflect that. Obviously, folks enjoy getting a bargain. Local property owners are getting a good deal in exchange for their annual payment. Your financial support helps us to offer and maintain the services designed to be the most useful to local library users. Also, your contribution indicates how strongly property owners support and value TCPL as a public resource for the entire community.

Everyone loves a bargain. We all like to think we are getting the most for our money when we spend it. I hope you think the same way about your public library. I hope you love the library and believe we are doing our best to wisely utilize the financial resources entrusted to us in continuing to get the best return on your investment. Many people would love to get a bargain every day, yet that is difficult to achieve. However, our bargain is available to you more than 350 days a year. I hope you stop in soon.
