Director's Notes & E-readers

Well, it happened! TCPL entered another facet of the digital age: E-readers you may check out. Some customers probably say, "It's about time!" or "WOW, this is great!" Others may wonder, "Why now?" A few will speculate, "What does this mean for the future of libraries?" As TCPL continues moving forward, these questions and many others have been on my mind for the past two years.

TCPL's first foray into E-readers may challenge what some people see as the core library product – print books. Although this era is known as the "information age," an age of free-flowing and exceedingly accessible information, many people perceive print books as fundamental to the library experience.

It's true TCPL has built a fabulous print collection. By 2013, the library offered over 341,000 print books. However, since the turn of the 21st century, the publishing industry ratio for producing more non-print than print items increases annually.

Most annual library budgets include substantial funds for materials purchases. Library customers see these new print items in book displays and library catalogs. Increasing the number of digital-based library materials we purchase means some of these new materials will not be visible inside library buildings. For customers who enjoy being in libraries one question is, "What is the library going to look like in the future?"

As an administrator and financial decision-maker, I have to consider all customer questions and preferences and find the best possible answers. At this point, TCPL's print books to E-books ratio is about 30 to 1. All users are enjoying new library offerings, and thanks to our generous donors, we now offer circulating E-readers. The core challenge is "How to, over time, change that ratio and maintain a library that looks like a library."

What about these new E-readers? Electronic based reading devices are pervasive in today's society. By offering E-readers to check out, I believe we help more library customers experience and enjoy digital-based recreational reading. By expanding library downloadable collections, TCPL E-readers also can be reloaded to offer more and different E-books.

Still, the questions of how much to budget and which materials to acquire, remain a challenge.

TCPL will push forward into the digital age. We will circulate more E-readers. Budgets will be reallocated to purchase downloadables and streaming-based content. Still, we will continue to provide customers with print materials and enjoyable on-site programs and services. Not so much because it is core to our mission, but because we are fortunate enough to be able to serve three types of users – traditional print book lovers, digital fans, and increasing numbers of customers who enjoy both.

No one can predict the future! Hopefully TCPL will be progressive enough to maintain its place as a cultural component in the community, a provider of new resources, and an affordable alternative for as many county residents as possible. These are traditions we will continue and, when possible, expand upon!

TCPL E-Readers To Check Out?

Customers who checked out TCPL E-readers this summer loved them! Questions? Answers below:

Q: Can I check one out?
A: All it takes is a TCPL card! If you don't have a card, visit your nearest TCPL library.

Q: Do I need to download books?
A: No. These E-readers come loaded with at least 20 books.

Q: Is it difficult to use? What if I have vision issues?
A: Just turn them on & start reading! You can adjust the text size, font, and screen brightness.

Q: Why is A Wrinkle in Time on every E-reader?
A: It's the book choice for our community-wide read.

Q: Who paid for these E-readers?
A: They were a gift from generous donors to the Library Foundation.

To find out more about E-readers, check TIPCAT, ask a staff member, call 429-0113, or go to www.tcpl.lib.in.us.

A Surprise Gift From Robert F. Mertz

Like many of us, Robert "Bob" Mertz grew up in Lafayette. With two sisters and a brother, he went to school here and graduated from Jeff High School. Mr. Mertz attended Indiana University and served in the U.S. Army in the 1940's. He was active in several local businesses and enjoyed a 20-year career as the administrator of the accounting firm we now know as Huth-Thompson. In addition to several service clubs, philanthropic organizations, and the Theatre Organ Society, Mr. Mertz made gifts to the Friends of the Library and the Library Foundation. He was active in the Centennial Neighborhood Association, and many of you may remember driving by his house on Union Street: a lit Christmas tree stood in the window 365 days a year.

Although some of us did not have the opportunity to know Mr. Mertz, he remembered the library. We were surprised and delighted to receive a very generous gift from his estate to the Library Foundation.

To read more about Mr. Mertz, go to http://bit.ly/1kImXFG for his obituary and a Theatre Organ Society article at http://bit.ly/1unFY0o.

For assistance in planning your gift, contact Assistant County Librarian Amy Paget at (765) 429-0101 or amypaget@tcpl.lib.in.us.
