SEPTEMBER IS LIBRARY CARD SIGN-UP MONTH!

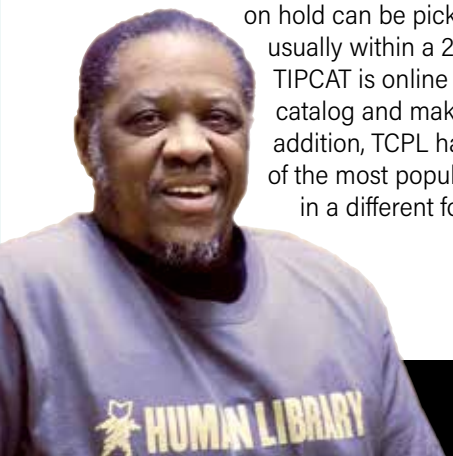
Director's Notes

South Street entry is scheduled to be done this October.

These are exciting times for the TCPL downtown renovation project since we completed the first phase of this year-long activity. We are excited for you to see the accomplishments in our Circulation area with our new color scheme, new "greeter desk" and energy efficient lighting. It is gratifying to realize that the plans we envisioned are coming to fruition, slowly but surely. Library customers, especially adults, are now in for their most challenging days of the construction activity with the next phase. For progress to continue, TCPL implemented a "closed stacks" approach for the adult print collection. Unfortunately, and for safety reasons, no browsing will be possible with the adult nonfiction and fiction collection. TCPL staff members continue to retrieve any specific titles or authors customers request. Also, we can bring out several books for your review and selection to provide that browsing feel.

We realize the inability to browse may be disappointing and frustrating to library customers. We understand your sense of exploration and discovery of authors and book titles. This may result in fewer people visiting the Downtown Library as we go through this phase of the project. The good thing is that we anticipate the entire adult collection and west part of the building will be completely open in mid-December. We look forward to the excitement that achievement will generate.

Please remember there are three branches with fully-browsable adult collections. Also, remember any item placed on hold can be picked up at any TCPL location, usually within a 24-hour time period. TCPL's TIPCAT is online 24/7 for you to search the catalog and make your unique selections. In addition, TCPL has streaming versions of some of the most popular materials, so you may find it in a different format.



Over the summer, the South Street exterior site work began and continues. We believe the new brick entrance and improved entryway will greatly enhance the recognition that this building is a public library. By late October, new sidewalks, benches, flowering bushes and a monument sign at the Red Crown Mini-Museum will be completed. We hope these improvements will increase the use of TCPL's 24-Hour library inside the building. This stand-alone, always available library has over 300 items that can be checked out.

Knowing the closed stacks will be a big challenge for ya'll as library customers, it is challenging for library staff as well. As each phase is completed, staff members must transition from one space to another. It is like playing musical chairs. At times, the construction noise levels and the minimizations of their work spaces are just as challenging. As staff do their best to provide good customer service, please show them patience and grace. If your customer transition is not exactly as you planned, please allow them the benefit of the doubt. We can straighten out any difficult errors on our part if you just give us the chance to do so.

As mentioned in the last Director's Notes, we plan to remain open throughout the renovation. In the next two months, we will see if this is realistic or just a dream. If we need to close it will be for a day or two. Thus far, the four major partners involved in the renovation project have worked tirelessly to keep open communications, adjust priorities and timelines, and make necessary changes. I anticipate this approach will take us through the entire project. Along the way, we plan to revel in the accomplishments. After all, exciting times call for fun celebrations. Stay tuned for future updates.

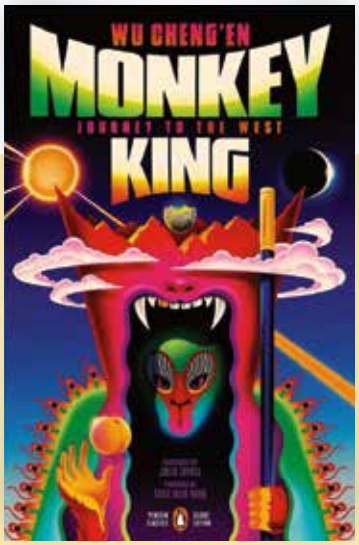
2023 Big Read



Monkey King: Journey to the West, translated by Julia Lovell

"Shapeshifter, mischief-maker, and kung-fu master, the immortal Monkey King doles out punchlines and punches in equal measure.

His life of simian shenanigans is interrupted, however, when the Buddha orders him to accompany the monk Tripitaka and a band of unlikely allies on a journey from China to India to find sacred sutras for the Tang Dynasty ... Julia Lovell's adaptation of Wu Cheng'en's Journey to the West presents the classic Chinese epic as a fast-paced adventure, filled with humor and heart ... Wu Cheng'en (c. 1505-1580), a Ming Dynasty novelist and poet, is believed to be the author of Journey to the West, which was published anonymously in 1592." The Purdue English Department

TCPL Programs:

Princess Iron Fan: Big Read Film

Wed., Sept. 20 | Klondike | 6 p.m.

Purdue Professor Shaun Hughes presents the first animated movie made in China. It was developed as a patriotic cartoon & released in Shanghai, 1941. Based on a story from Monkey King/Journey Into The West, the animation was inspired by Disney's Snow White (1939).

Trustworthy Information At Your Fingertips

TCPL subscribes to a variety of leading databases. Unlike Internet search engines, these are carefully selected & fact-based sources. The information is often more detailed. Best of all, you get what you need without scrolling through countless paid postings.

Q. What are some topics?

Browse newspapers & magazines, automotive repair, business & legal resources, also science & education articles. You can learn new languages & find reading resources for all ages.

Q. Where can I access TCPL databases?

Most are available at https://tcpl.lib.in.us/research/databases/.

Q. How do they work?

Just click on the database name & it takes you to that selection. For the exact information you need, just fill in the blanks.

Q. Can I print or save what I find?

Yes. Simply highlight, print, or save texts & images. Most newspaper & magazine databases allow you to save articles. You can even e-mail them to yourself.
